Schools affiliated with base pass state validation exam

By Alice Patton

15th Airlift Wing school liaison

Four schools that service Hickam students achieved Adequate Yearly Progress under the No Child Left Behind Act.

In addition to Radford High School, one of only two high schools island-wide to make the grade, three base-affiliated elementary schools, Hickam, Mokulele and Nimitz all received a "Good Standing" rating.

This was Radford's second straight year of AYP. It was the only high school last year to earn the distinction, and it's an accreditation well deserved, according to school officials.

To make AYP, a school's students must reach state proficiency benchmarks on the Hawaii State Assessment in reading and math, and meet other goals relating to test participation and promotion or graduation, according to a Department of Education news release.

This applies to all students including subgroups defined by poverty levels, ethnicity, English as a second language or special education needs. There are 37 benchmarks, so if any of the 37 subgroups are deficient; the entire school is labeled as not achieving AYP

The entire school district improved this past year with 52 percent of its schools meeting AYP. In the 2002-2003, 39 percent of the state's public school achieved AYP.

In other school-related news, the Stanford Achievement Test Honor Roll was announced last week and three base-affiliated elementary schools made the list. Hickam, Mokulele, Nimitz elementary and Aliamanu Middle School made the list.

To be included on the SAT Honor Roll a school's average had to be at or above the national norm on both the reading and math portions of the SAT.

Hawaii has used the test to provide an indicator of student achievement in relation to national standards.

"We congratulate the schools and students who performed well on the SAT," said Superintendent Patricia Hamamoto. "Sometimes, as we focus on school improvement, we need to remind ourselves of the many public school achievements that currently demonstrate measures of success."

For more information on base-affiliated schools and programs, contact Ms. Patton at 448-5236.

Protection

Children should wear safety gear

By Maj. Heather Zwicker Pacific Air Forces Public Affairs

Dear Parent.

I followed your child home from school today because I was concerned for his safety. You see, for some reason he was not wearing a helmet. He also had a passenger on his scooter. Not only was there normal traffic on the street he was scooting down, but there were also large construction vehicles.

When I arrived at your house you were mad at me because I had scared your child. They obviously were concerned that a stranger was following them. It was not my intention to scare them, but to let you know that I was concerned for their well-being. I wasn't sure if you were aware that according to 15th Airlift Wing Instruction 31-204, all bicycle operators and all persons using a coaster-wheeled conveyance are required to wear safety helmets on 15AW instablations. A coaster-wheeled conveyance is defined in the regulation as inline or roller skates, scooters and skateboards.

You told me to mind my own business. Well, as a fellow housing occupant and Air Force member, it is my duty to tell people when they are not abiding by base regulations.

In the U.S., 68,530 injuries resulted in trips to the emergency room from foot-powered scooters through July 2001. The majority of the deaths reported for this same time occurred when riders were hit by a car while riding on public streets, according to the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

The CPSC recommendations for non-motorized scooters are the same as for their motorized counterparts. The agency says children under 12 can use the foot-powered scooters, but children under eight should only use them with close adult supervision.

In 2002 more than 288,900 children ages 14 and under were treated in emergency rooms for bicycle-related injuries. Head injuries account for more than 60 percent of bicycle-related deaths, more than two-thirds of bicycle-related hospital admissions and about one-third of emergency room visits. Bike helmets have been shown to reduce the risk of head injury by as much as 85 percent and the risk of brain injury by 88 percent, according to the National Safe Kids Campaign website.

I couldn't even begin to count the number of times I've see teenagers riding up to the Shoppette on skateboards without helmets, children riding scooters down the middle of the street sans headgear and children on bicycles cutting in front of my car without checking their "six".

Parents, we can never predict when an accident is going to happen. Your child might hit a bump or a rock that causes them to take a spill and that driver out there might not be paying proper attention. Whatever the situation is, let's please make sure our children are protected.

It's your future, vote for it!

By Gen. Richard MyersJoint Chiefs of Staff chairman

WASHINGTON – In

this election year, you, our men and women in uniform, are stationed around the globe serving our nation and defending democracy. We have both the responsibility and the privilege to participate in our democracy by exercising our fundamental right to vote.

I encourage every one of you, as well as your family members of voting age, to join in the democratic process and cast your ballot. You will have the opportunity to vote, either in person or through absentee ballots, in primary, special run-off and general elections, no matter where you are stationed or what operation you are participating in.

Recent elections have demonstrated the importance of every absentee ballot. Your vote does count! The 2004 elections will determine our choice for president and vice president, 34 senators, the entire House of Representatives, and 13 governors, as well as thousands of local officials. I urge each of you to participate, starting with the primaries already underway and continuing through the general election Nov. 2.

Most of you will be using the absentee voting process, which has never been easier than it is today. For those of us in the Armed Forces and our family members, starting the process is as easy as filling out and mailing the Federal Post Card Application. The FPCA is available from your unit voting assistance officer, who can also assist you with your state procedures.

As members of the Armed Forces, we each have a responsibility to take part in determining our nation's leadership.

Action Lines

Col. Ray Torres15th Airlift Wing commander

The purpose of the Action Line is in its name – it's your direct link to me so we can work as a team to make Hickam a better community. It also allows you to recognize individuals who go "above and beyond" in their duties – and we all know there are plenty of those folks here. All members of Team Hickam are welcome to use the Action Line, however, I urge you to give the normal chain of command the first crack at resolving problems or issues. It's only fair to give our commanders and managers the first opportunity to work issues under their responsibility. If you have done this and are still not satisfied, give my commander's Action Line a call. If you want me to get back to you, leave your name and number, state your issue, tell me who you have talked to and why you were not satisfied with their response. I'll work your issue and respond verbally or in writing. The Action Line number is 449-2996. Messages may also be sent by e-mail to 15aw.pal@hickam.af.mil.

Comment: What is the possibility of getting a drive-through ATM on base?

Response: Lt. Col. Gary Nanfito, 15th Airlift Wing comptroller, is the bank liaison officer on Hickam. He has discussed the possibility of placing a drive through ATM with management from First Hawaiian Bank and Hickam Federal Credit Union. Management from both institutions sited high construction costs, the requirement for a large piece of land to accommodate the ATM and the high lease costs associated with the land, concern for security, and protection of the ATM from the elements as reasons for not installing a drive-through ATM. With these factors in mind, the chance of obtaining a drive-through ATM at this time is extremely low; however, Colonel Nanfito will periodically review ATM usage, ATM location, and assess the need for a drive-through ATM. In the event customer demand drives either additional ATMs or the placement of a drive-through ATM, he will work with the bank and credit union management to seek additional support. I encourage customers to contact the bank and credit union management to communicate banking needs and to request new services. For your convenience, we currently have 11 ATMs on Hickam and one at Bellows. The First Hawaiian Bank has four ATMs on base: two outside the bank, and one each at the commissary and AMC terminal. The Hickam Federal Credit Union has eight ATMs on Hickam: one outside the credit union, officer and enlisted clubs, food court, Bellows, the bowling center, Pacific Air Forces snack bar and the

Environmental study available

By Tech. Sgt. Mark Munsey Kukini Editor

The 15th Civil Engineer Squadron Environmental Flight has drafted a feasibility study examining potential contaminant's at a high traffic portion of Hickam.

From the late 1940's to 1965, a landfill operated on base. After closure, Mamala Bay Golf Course was constructed on and around the landfill.

Hawaii State

Library, Hawaii

478 South King

Street, Honolulu,

Hi, 96813

Recently-completed investigation and analysis efforts determined that contaminant's in and around the former landfill could potential- Documents Center, ly pose unacceptable risks to human health, according to base environmental officials.

Contaminant's in surface soil include arsenic, associated with blasting grit

(808) 586-3542 media deposited in many areas within the site. Contaminant's in subsurface soil at the site include arsenic, dioxins, and chlorinated solvents. Contaminant's in groundwater include chlorinated solvents.

"We have produced this feasibility study to examine various remedial alternatives to reduce the risks to human health and the environment," said Todd Lanning, 15th CES Environmental Restoration Program chief. The study summarizes the effectiveness, implementability, and cost of various remedial alternatives and recommends a preferred remedial action. The study is available at the Hawaii state library for public comment through Nov. 13.

"This is an opportunity for people to read and comment on our plan to address contamination concerns at this site," said Bill Grannis, 15th CES environmental cleanup program

Fiscal closeout brings benefits to 15th AW

By Capt. Darnell Salley 15th Comptroller Squadron

The books are now closed on Hickam's fiscal year 2004 expenditures, and once again base bean counters benefited from being the western-most finance office in the Air Force.

Hickam's 15th Comptroller Squadron has last crack at all Air Force fallout money not utilized by other bases, and during the past two months the 15th Airlift Wing reaped nearly $5.2 million for its top unfunded requirements.

The wing received only $2.2M in Global War on Terrorism funding, down from $12.4 million received in FY03. However, this money still paid for 99 percent of base Air Expeditionary Force deployment tasking costs.

Keeping people first, more than $2.1 million went towards quality-of-life improvements in the chapel, dormitories, tennis courts, facilities at Bellows, officers' club renovation and other 15th Services Squadron agencies to include the child development centers. New equipment, supplies and furniture will soon appear in all of these facilities making everyone's recreation time safer and more enjoyable.

"Overall, a fantastic story resulting in increased capability across the board for Hickam, but it took a Herculean team effort by several agencies to pull this off," said. Lt. Col. Gary Nanfito, 15th AW comptroller.

Spearheading fiscal closeout, the 15th Comptroller Squadron brilliantly coordinated 99.9 percent execution of Hickam's $158.3 million annual budget, he said. Their dead-on funding guidance and eagleeyed accounting operations ensured financial success for the entire wing.

"Coordinating the effort, the financial analysis flight worked flawlessly with resource advisors throughout the base to overcome significant shortfalls and appropriately execute all available funds," said. "My hat goes off to every base resource manager because they were the backbone of the 15th AW financial success.'

"This year DFAS Pacific supported the closeout efforts of the 15th AW by providing on-sight augmentation to speed the funds obligation process," Colonel Nanfito said.
"Their support was crucial to the execution of all available funds and without them things would never have gone so smoothly."

The 15th Contracting Squadron played a key role in fiscal year closeout by quickly awarding numerous contracts to ensure all available funds were obligated before the midnight hour, the base comptroller said. Their ability to find vendors who could provide needed services and goods was phenomenal.

The 15th Civil Engineer Squadron also had amazing success this closeout, he said. They were able to justify and validate to PACAF a need for crucial infrastructure funds. These badly-needed funds will go to upgrade, replace, and install many areas on base. These projects will go a long way toward improving and maintaining aging infrastructure throughout the entire base.

"This year's coordinated efforts produced results beyond all expectations and is testimony to the effectiveness of the wing commander's financial guidance: teamwork and mission first, together we can all prevail ... and we did," Colonel Nanfito said.

Halloween ghouls of engagement

This year's trick-or-treating hours are from 6 to 8 p.m. Oct. 31. Here are a few safety tips for the evening.

Trick or treaters:

- All trick-or-treaters should carry and display a working flashlight or "glow stick" while outside.
- Reflective material or devices should be part of the costuming, worn or carried.
- Face painting is much safer than masks and does not obscure the vision of the wearer. If masks are used, ensure the eye holes are sufficiently large enough so vision is not obstructed.
- Adults or responsible older children should always accompany the younger children
- Cross streets at crosswalks or intersections. Do not assume drivers will see or stop.
- Instruct all children not to eat any treats until they have been examined by an adult.

Motorists and big kids:

- Please drive extra slow and very cautiously throughout the housing areas.
- Absolutely no drinking and driving!
- Keep an eye out for the whole Hickam tribe help keep all of the kids safe.
- If you have small monsters who are going out to collect the loot, accompany them and keep them under control carry an extra flashlight with good batteries.
- Report unsafe acts or motorists immediately to Security Forces, 449-6372, or the Crimestopper line, at 449-7114.

Base SCUBA training takes place

By Catherine Landa
Island Divers Hawaii divemaster

Recently, a group of enthusiastic potential Self-Contained Underwater Breathing Apparatus divers tried their flippers at Scuba in pool one. "Discover Scuba" is held free every few months by Island Divers Hawaii, which recently celebrated their one-year anniversary on base. Each participant has a twenty-minute briefing before taking to the pool in a full set of SCUBA gear provided by the shop.

Instructors and divemasters from Island Divers Hawaii supervise the experience and provide a short skill development session. "It's very rewarding to see people who have always been curious about the experience of diving get to play around in the pool and see what fun it is," said Matt Zimmerman, dive center owner. "Typically, we get people who come in with friends and family members to check it out. Lots of fathers find diving with their daughters a great thing they can do together while stationed in Hawaii."

Underwater Oahu offers a wealth of wildlife. From sea turtles swimming along amidst a colorful backdrop of beautiful fish to some of the best wreck diving in the Hawaiian chain, there's literally something scenic for everyone, he said.

"If you aren't seeing Hawaii underwater, you are missing half the show," Mr. Zimmerman claimed.

Island Divers is a full-service PADI dive center with daily boat charters, specialty and open water classes, environmental projects and travel opportunities. The dive club is currently free and club divers often get together for weekend boat dives, shore dives, cookouts, and even dive trips to places like Palau. Open Water Certification classes start every week.

Those interested should contact Island Divers Hawaii at 423-8222 or go to Web site www.IslandDivers Hawaii.com.

Airmen come together for humanitarian service

BALAD AIR BASE, Iraq (AFPN) – When given the chance for humanitarian service, Airmen of the 332nd Air Expeditionary Wing here go all out.

More than 50 Airmen helped unload two 30-foot containers of school supplies and toys and then organized and packaged them for an Iraqi school.

"What a great turnout," said Chaplain (Capt.) Quentin Collins, with the 332nd AEW, who is deployed from the Oklahoma Air National Guard. "I was expecting maybe 20 people, but this is absolutely great."

Chaplain Collins said the chapel regularly receives packages of gifts and supplies in the mail, and he contacted the Army civil affairs office to find out how to get them out to children who need them the most.

"They told me the Air Force actually adopted a local school and hospital, and they would deliver the goods for us if we organized them," Chaplain Collins said. "So what a great opportunity this is to be part of a humanitarian effort."

To some of the volunteers, it was a chance to give back to the local community and make them feel like they are part of an important mission.

"I have three kids, and this just sounded like a great idea," said Capt. Dianne Stroble, of the 332nd Expeditionary Medical Group, who is deployed from Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio. "I thought that this would be something that might bring joy to the kids, who obviously don't have a lot."

The civil affairs staff will deliver the school supplies and toys in late October. (Story by Staff Sgt. Ryan Hansen, 332nd Air Expeditionary Wing Public Affairs)

Junior ROTC expands, seeks retirees to teach at new units

MAXWELL AIR FORCE BASE, Ala. (AFPN)

-Airmen planning to retire within the next couple of years and Airmen who have retired within the past five years may want to look to Junior ROTC before storing their uniforms, said Jo Alice Talley. She is the Air Force Junior ROTC instructor management chief.

Air Force Junior ROTC will add 201 units by fall 2007, creating a need for an additional 402 aerospace science instructors to teach in high-school classrooms worldwide, Ms. Talley said.

People from all career fields are needed.

"It doesn't matter what background the person had in the Air Force," Col. H.B. McCarraher III, Air Force Junior ROTC director said. "The leadership skills, customs and courtesies, academic background and professional military education are all

Air Force receives top DODlevel award

WASHINGTON (AFPN) – The U.S. Air Forces in Europe communications and information directorate, which oversees the Air Force's communications and information-management effort in the European theater, was given top honors in the chief information officer awards team category Oct. 7.

Defense Department officials honored their top information and knowledge workers for important contributions to the department's transformation efforts that officials said are improving operations, saving money and, in many cases, saving lives on the battlefield.

Linton Wells II, acting assistant secretary of defense for network and information integration, presented this year's awards during the DOD Chief Information Officer Executive Board meeting at the Pentagon. Mr. Wells is also the department's chief information officer.

Actions that garnered the top team award included upgrading land-mobile radios throughout the command more than four years ahead of DOD's encryption-compliance deadline and leading the Air Force in transforming to the new Defense

Messaging System in a combat environment. The directorate is also credited with improving interface and decreasing air-tasking processing time using command-and-control improvements, and demonstrating its ability to thwart hacking attempts during a three-day exercise.

The competition has grown increasingly competitive since the first awards ceremony in 2001, officials said. Winners were selected from about 80 nominations from commands worldwide. (Story by Donna Miles, American Forces Press Service)

Thrift Savings Plan open season begins today

RANDOLPH AIR FORCE BASE, Texas (AFPN) – Civilian and military employees can sign up for, or change, their Thrift Savings Plan contribution amounts during the "open season" today to Dec. 31.

"TSP is a long-term retirement savings plan, which everyone should consider," said Senior Master Sgt. Felipe Ortiz, superintendent of the Air Force Personnel Contact Center here. "It's a great supplement to military and civilian retirement plans.

"It's also important to note that TSP is not limited to investing in stocks," he said. "People can choose safer government securities as well."

TSP offers investors the chance for lower taxes each year they contribute, while not having to pay taxes on earnings until they reach retirement.

"Eligible employees can take out loans and make in-service withdrawals from their TSP accounts," Ms. Thomas said. "And you can keep your account, even if you leave military or federal civilian service."

"As with any individual retirement account, the sooner you begin contributing, the better," Ms. Thomas said.

Contribution elections or changes during this open season will take effect Dec. 12, for both military and civilian employees.

More information about the Thrift Savings Plan can be found in the booklet "Summary of the Thrift Savings Plan" on the home page under civilian or uniformed services TSP Forms and Publications. (Story by Master Sgt. Randy L. Mitchell, Air Force Personnel Center Public Affairs)

Did they have fun

By Tech. Sgt. Mark Munsey Kukini Editor

Saturday's Little League coach-pitch game between Team Titans and the Tigers ended without a score and no declaration of a victorious team.

And that's just the way the league likes it, said Eric Day, league president.

Just by being out there trying, every player is a winner, Day said. We stress to each child that their parents care about them by giving them opportunities to play and learn.

It's a concept of sport for enjoyment, he said, and it's a philosophy with plenty of statistical backing.

The National Youth Sports Coaching Association has taken many surveys over the years and found that over 70 percent of Americas youth drop out of sports after the age of 12, he said. And the main causes are too much pressure and emphasis placed on winning

"Every child develops at a different rate, but if they are not having fun, they will not return," he said. We encourage each parent to ask their children, after a game, not 'who won,' but 'did you have fun.'

Each team can send as many batters to the plate each inning until five base path runners have crossed home plate or until the defensive team records three outs, whichever comes first.

"One small step toward the next skill level," Day said.

There was one Team Titan player who already knew which skill level she wanted to focus on.

wanted to focus on.

"I like to bat," Jessie Payne said. "It's the thing I like the most."
